

Commitments to Action

- Increase awareness of all resources available on campus
- I will try to get the word across to my community, regarding change to benefit the students, and have a successful lifestyle.
- I commit to become more involved in my community college.
- When I walk out of this summit, I will commit to keep on Fighting. I will not stop until we get what we want. I will get involved in more organizations than what I am in and I will have more connections with different groups. My commitment is simply to continue doing what I'm doing now and get more leaders.
- I am fully committed to helping support the efforts of undocumented students. I am fully committed being an ally to the liberation work that every student at this conference is engaged in.
- Being together with the community of other schools was very inspiring and I think that with the help and support from these amazing people, we would not leave inspired and full of joy that there are other schools mobilizing for a cause. My commitment is to give my all for the support of the community.
- Use my education to help others in the community, reach out to the students I work with/ see on campus and become a more active citizen.
- I am committed to transforming the success rates of students in community college and to make community college students aware of all of the resources that are available to students and involvement in career building.
- To bring more awareness to community college students and future students about resources to pursue a higher education. Help them break the barriers that come.
- The commitment that I would take to action on my campus is to take all the ideas I have learned in this summit and put them into action because our schools are our future.
- I commit to supporting AB540 students and be active in their community to make it a part of my own. I commit to taking what I learned at Mobilize.org back to my college and spreading the movement.
- After the summit I will help spread the word on my campus about programs and try to run for a seat on the Student Senate

Commitments to Action

- I will be more invested in my school. I will work hard to bridge gaps between students so we can all come together for the good of all of us.
- I will spread the word about education to my peers and teachers.
- I plan to join clubs and actually have a voice in my college and community. Also, to fight for our education, because if not us, then who?
- Volunteering on campus and off-campus. Getting more associated with the Student Body on my campus. Taking political science class to understand the government system.
- Education is the keystone to opportunity and the future. Without a more educated people we fail the promise we have made to its people: That we are all created equal, that we all can dream and speak freely, and last as long as we talk and work together; nothing is impossible.
- I commit to protect, motivate and educate.
- Collaborate with student groups to help fundraise for Japan's survivors. Work with other schools to collaborate with their events regardless of school districts. Talk to my supervisor and school staffs about our experience at Mobilize Target 2020. Refocus my priorities to balance life, school, and change.
- Create an AB540 project back in Salinas, CA, update others, mobilize, network
- I will work with all my energy to fulfill the mission of my project that Mobilize and students have funded. I will study the problems among people and in the system. I'll educate myself to have a good strategy/ orientation to change the system.
- I am going to set up an appointment with my Vice Principal of Student Services and express the trouble I am having and a few other problems that a few of my peers are experiencing.
- Begin an AB540 club on campus
- I commit myself to further investing my skills and time to civic engagement to my people, to those students who are underrepresented. I commit myself to teaching others and developing further leaders. To implement action into my community college so if the issues that students face are pointed out and apply aid to those students so that support is institutionalized and last forever!
- "Hard work beats talent especially when talent doesn't want to work." We must work hard for what we want and strive to better our junior college. And bring awareness to our college and community, while working with our new community that we made this weekend.

Commitments to Action

- I am fully committed to organize my peers to come together as a whole unit of change. I am committed to educating any one that I meet in any walks of life.
- Living life motivated by love, fighting for change. Thank you Mobilize.org, we shall mobilize!
- I plan to get with my classmates and advocate our Newly Learned Solutions from this summit. I plan to get in touch and network to continue to bring these resources to those in my community that really need it.
- I am an advocate for the "haves" to support the "have nots". True democracy for people to make our own decisions over corporations. Mobilize as many as I can to voice and campaign the people's needs over corporate greed.
- Get my community involved with my college so they can get involved and help students keep staying in colleges. I still plan to look for other ways for my project to keep going and help students save money.
- Continue my student activism with a new, improved, more confident and forceful attitude and actions. I will start coordinating relations with Skyline/Chabot/De Anza and all other schools in order to help create that grand and powerful community amongst all our colleges.
- I want to inform my college students about government policy that affected us and that we need to vote for.
- Will continue to voice out and trying to establish UMOJA SANKOFA program on air campus. We are the voice.
- I commit to not only keep working hard to change things at my college but support the programs that I was made aware of here throughout this conference.
- With all the friendships I have made through this summit, I have the accessibility to different ideas. I am going to stay in contact with everyone to connect my thoughts to help a cause that is much needed. I'll still be going out to different teacher activities to preach about dual commitment.
- We will keep on fighting and we will make the movement more powerful. Connect with other campuses. We have so much networking.
- I will do everything I can to reduce African-American dropout rates all across California. Eventually the world.

Commitments to Action

- I will go back to my community and college and help empower and bring people to action to expect change both locally and nationally.
- I will try my hardest to make students on my campus understand that we do have a voice and we're not just a community college, we are the same as the universities and state colleges.
- To raise awareness about this organization in my school.
- I choose to commit my time to create a change in the sense of reaching out, educating and share my knowledge with anyone around me. If I can take out a minute out of my own busy life to create a change to empower somebody, I will, and so can everyone else.
- I commit to spread the knowledge I got in this summit to all the people I can at my school. I will make sure that most/more students get informed about how they can be heard.
- I will educate my fellow classmates and the younger generation, and organize meetings to eventually take action and make a difference.
- I promise to take what I have learned here this weekend and share it with others in order to make a difference.
- Prior to attending I felt like my voice could not make a difference. Today, and after attending this summit I feel empowered like never before. This may be the end of the summit, but it's the beginning of creating something much bigger.
- I am committed to do more outreaching program to bring awareness about the resources and retention programs on campus, as well as in our communities.
- I am not going to do much when I get back. "You can't take of others if one does not take of themselves." I need to take care of my problems and my mother. Although, once I take care of my future kids, wife, and other necessities sustained by a successful business I have a few ideas for future projects that will help people on a smaller scale which I will fund myself. One project I want to start is based off of "St. Jane Adam's" middle house model and combining Afrokabambatas Zulu Nation model.
- To establish a UMOJA program at my school; a laptop loan program; an effective book loan program and commit to take advantage that the capitol is in our front yard to advocate for all the colleges that cannot do the same.

Commitments to Action

- My commitment to action is to bring the information as well as the ideas I learned this weekend back to my campus at Folsom Lake College to help my classmates with their success.
- Follow through with communications with students from other schools. Share my experiences with my fellow student leaders and pass along my successes to those I met at this conference so they can improve and empower their schools. Let's lobby in Sacramento, let's create and expand book loan programs, and let's support the programs that contribute to student success.
- This is a great opportunity for me to participate and learn from my fellow students, although I was just a facilitator (my table was so good at the process that I didn't have to do much). As an international student, my biggest concern is financial issues. But this conference really gives me some insight about the struggle of domestic students for their own education, which directly affects international students like us. My commitment to action is to spread the words about the consequence and resources on campus.
- After this weekend's summit I'm committing to work harder to support AB540 students just like me. I will make access to financial support accessible for students that need it. I will not only help my college, but also my community and everyone who needs it. I will mobilize. Before I followed the 3 P's: Passion, Perseverance, and Patience in order to get something done. After today it is PPM: Passion, Perseverance, and Mobilize.
- Like our proposal we will fight to have a support space so that undocumented students can succeed. We will raise awareness for all the minorities overall. Contact and work together with all the people I met here today. Fight for what we believe (CA Dream Act/ Immigration Reform)
- I will commit myself to make an impact on my campus and community. I also pledge that I will help other students' colleges improve our campus and lives.
